

The CWRU Journal of Economics produces two products – a magazine and a journal. We welcome research from students/individuals outside JoE to publish their work in both of these products. In this document, we detail external submission guidelines for those interested in submitting their work to be published in the journal.

The work we expect: Papers in the journal constitute full-length research projects. Almost all research that's been published in the journal utilizes econometric methodology to conduct causal analysis. We do not require econometric methodology to be implemented for a submission to be successful in the journal, but we expect applied research to utilize some form of causal analysis to make their claims. We also welcome theoretical work, though we have not published any such work so far.

For your submission: It is required that your submission be in LaTeX. We create the journal through custom LaTeX formatting, and it is not possible to include/review a submission for publication if it is not in a LaTeX format. When submitting your work for us to review, please be prepared to submit both a .zip file containing the LaTeX code/figures as well as the compiled .pdf file.

To see more about the work that's been published, feel free to visit our website. For any questions regarding expectations for submissions, please email journalofeconomics@case.edu.
